Jubilee to swap vessels...

The Jubilee Casino will be shrinking in size, once a swap of vessels with the Cotton Club in Greenville, Ms., is completed. (Echo staff illustration by Richard Meek, Diana Perry and Kelly Blanchard)

...Supervisors fear layoffs, less revenue

BY ED LEPOMA

Everybody's heard, "It ain't over 'til the fat lady sings."

Well, the fat lady, known as the Jubilee Casino, will soon be deported from Bayou Caddy and be replaced by what some fear will be an unattractive kisser cousin from the Delta.

But, before she leaves, Hancock County Tax Assessor Eddie Murtagh vowed, "We'll do whatever we have to do" to ensure that the Jubilee pays the county more than $350,000 in property taxes it still owes.

The State Gaming Commission Monday approved plans for the Jubilee Casino barge to move up the Mississippi River to Greenville, Miss. The Cotton Club paddlewheeler, which has been operating in Greenville since 1993, will be towed into Jubilee's Bayou Caddy site.

"It's in the hands of our attorneys," said Murtagh.

"I might have to be pulling at the rope when they pull up the anchor, but I'll be there," he said.

Murtagh said he was disappointed with the announcement that the Jubilee barge would leave because, "everything we did (in negotiating a recent tax compromise with Jubilee) was geared towards keeping them here...and trying to keep them from going bankrupt."

Jubilee officials have assured county supervisors that they would honor the compromise reached in early September, and pay the outstanding taxes, plus accrued interest.

A day after the announcement of the boat swap, supervisors still seemed stunned and helpless to do anything about the impending move.

"I'm sure everyone, including myself, hates to see it leave," said District 5 Supervisor Mike Ladner, who serves as board president.

"I'm definitely worried...I think it is going to affect employment," he predicted. He said the boat that's coming, "won't be anything like the Jubilee."

The Cotton Club is a paddlewheeler that has 27,600 square feet for gambling on two decks, and no on-board restaurant. It has about 550 slot machines and 33 or 34 tables for gaming.

In contrast, the Jubilee—which opened with much fanfare in January of 1994—has 34,000 square feet for gambling, 869 licensed slot machines and 52 gaming tables. The three-story casino boasts a bawdy, New Orleans French Quarter decor with wrought iron on the facade and glass chandeliers, mirrored ceilings and sweeping wood staircases inside.

News that the State Gaming Commission approved the vessel swap apparently caught supervisors off guard.

The parent Alpha Hospitality Corp., which owns the Jubilee, wants to move the Jubilee to what they say will be a larger and more profitable gambling market in Greenville.

The Cotton Club would be towed from its dock in Greenville to the Bayou Caddy site. The switch could take place as early as mid-October, and put the Jubilee out of business at least a month.

County Supervisors hurriedly called a meeting Tuesday with Jubilee officials to discuss the impact of the deal on the local economy, and on Jubilee's work force of about 500.

John Kingsbury, Jubilee's general manager, asked supervisors to think of the swap, "not as the end, but the beginning of a new phase of the company's (Alpha's) growth."

Kingsbury said he held meetings with Jubilee employees Monday to assure them there would be no layoffs during the downtime or after the smaller boat is in place.

After that meeting, Kings-

Richardson parents seek services

BY RICHARD MEEK

The parents of an autistic child in the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District have gone to federal court in an effort to obtain integration training and occupational therapy for their daughter.

Edward and Geraldyn Richardson, the parents of Elizabeth Richardson, filed a motion Sept. 7 in federal court in Biloxi for an injunction that would require the school district to provide additional services for Elizabeth, a fifth grader at Bay Middle School. The motion comes on the heels of an independent hearing officer's findings in early August that the district had not provided adequate educational services to Elizabeth.

Hearing officer David Walker ordered the school district to provide the integration training and occupational therapy for her. However, the school district has appealed those findings.

The Richardsons claim in the motion that Elizabeth is entitled to the requested services under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). They further stated Walker represented the state in the hearing and as such, the additional benefits must be provided "pending the determination" of the appeal.

Also, the motion claims the child will suffer irreparable harm if the "injunctive relief is not granted" and that "each day (Elizabeth) loses benefits is an opportunity that cannot be regained."

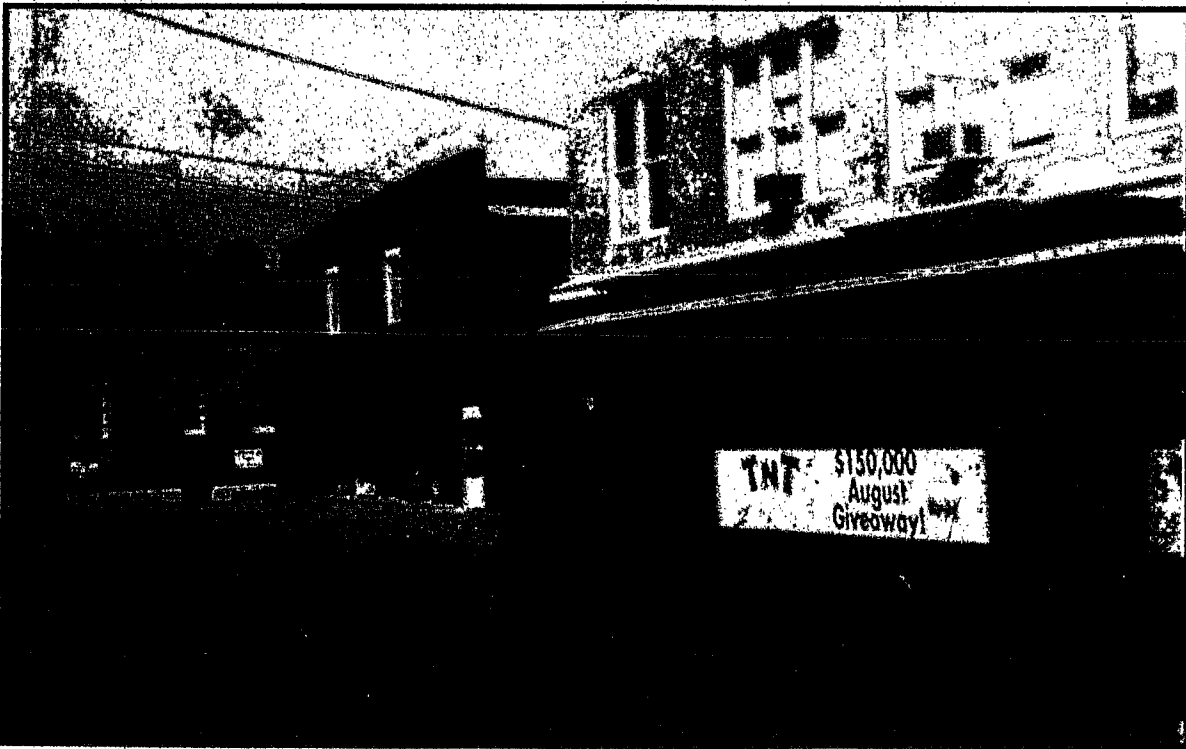

The motion also claims the district would not be "excessively harmed" by providing the services, and that continuing the appeals process would prove to be "infinitely more expensive."

The Richardsons are claiming they are likely to win the appeal, so relief should be granted.

School district attorney Lucien Gex said in his response that "there is no credible evidence to support" the Richardsons' claim that their daughter is entitled to the services under IDEA, and that they are not likely "to succeed upon the merits of this case."

No more trolleys

The site of Coast Transit Authority trolleys rolling down Main Street will be a thing of the past if several members of the Bay St. Louis City Council have their way. The council is considering eliminating CTA services in Bay St. Louis, which would leave the area with no public transportation. (Echo staff photo by Richard Meek)

Bay council may cancel transit

BY RICHARD MEEK

Transit riders in Bay St. Louis may soon have to find another mode of transportation.

The Bay St. Louis City Council is strongly considering pulling the plug on Coast Transit Authority. The result would leave the Bay-Waveland area with no public transportation.

In a sometimes terse City Council meeting Monday, council members questioned CTA Executive Director Ted Hearn and Assistant Executive Director Bob Neal about ridership in the area. Council is considering not enough riders are utilizing the trolley, which runs between Bay St. Louis and Gulfport.

Council members are also debating whether to pay $48,000 to keep the buses rolling in the Bay. The original cost for the upcoming fiscal year was initially in the neighborhood of $60,000. But CTA is proposing a reduced schedule with reduced costs.

"I don't see people riding (the buses). Explain that to me," Council President Tad Black said to the two CTA officials.

Hearn said over 48,000 customers rode the transit from Sept. 1 of 1994 through Aug. 31 of this year. However, he admitted it could not be determined from those numbers how many were using the transit for transportation in and around the Bay area, a figure council said it needs before any decision can be made.

"We are running the transit an average of 18 hours a day,

Proposed marina causes waves at city council

A proposed marina site sparked a heated debate between Bay St. Louis councilmen Jim Thrifflay and Jim Rutherford during a council meeting Monday night.

Mayor Eddie Favre was seeking permission to allow the engineering firm of Brown and Mitchell to calculate preliminary costs when Thrifflay voiced his opposition. He said he could not support Favre's request because of a lack of information. "The council needs to sit down and see where we are," Thrifflay said. "I want to see what we're talking about."

Rutherford challenged Thrifflay, saying the project is a "needed facility."

"I'm tired of running around for a few people," he said.

Rutherford added that "everything we've done (recently) is labeling the council 'negative' to anyone approaching the city with new ideas."

City planner Les Fillingame said Brown and Mitchell will only be providing estimated costs for dredging, rip-rap and a dock.

"We have no plans or specs on the table," Fillingame said.

Fillingame and Favre recently unveiled ambitious plans for a multi-phase marina. The first phase calls for a channel to be dredged, and a jetty, dock and parking lot constructed. Plans call for the first phase to be completed on the beach near the foot of DeMontluzin Street.

However, Thrifflay challenged city officials' claims that the city has rights to the property. He also questioned if funding would be available.

Favre has maintained the project will be paid for with state Tideland funding. He said he has been told the city can count on "750,000 to $1 million" per year of Tideland monies. "I know better," Thrifflay said.

Favre said no estimated cost can be given because plans are not yet finalized for the entire project.

Council President Tad Black said he wants the marina to be "strictly for pleasure craft. I don't want commercial boats (in the marina)."

The council voted 4-1, with Thrifflay opposing, to grant Favre's request for Brown and Mitchell to estimate material costs for the first phase.

In another matter, the council was informed that the city's share of a shoreline protection project on Beach Boulevard would be approximately $120,000, not $80,000 as originally estimated. Additionally, the money must be received by Friday or the Corps of Engineers will drop the project.

The Corps is picking up the majority of the cost of the protection project, which will run roughly from Bay View Court to near the Bay Bridge.

The original holdup was that the city needed to obtain construction easements from private property owners north of Bay View Court to build an offshore protective structure.

A dispute has lingered as to where exactly the dividing line is between public and private property. Two property owners originally refused to sign the required easements, which would give the city the right to build and maintain the shoreline protection structure.

However, Favre said, those two owners did sign the property when it appeared the new structure would be constructed some 30 to 40 feet out in the water, and the fill-in area between the new structure and Beach Boulevard would belong to the property owners. Some owners have lost nearly that amount of property in recent years to erosion.

But, building the structure out in the water would require a change order with the Corps, and additional monies would have to be contributed to the project by the city.

Some property owners, according to city officials and councilmen, have balked at the suggestion of paying for the fill-in privately.

Consequently, as the plan now stands, the new structure will be constructed near the current seawall.

The council voted 3-2 to make the payment to the Corps by Friday so construction can begin.

Pass budget revised

BY ED LEPOMA

Pass City Aldermen have raised revenue estimates, and still plan to give most city workers pay raises after making amendments Tuesday night to the 1995-96 operating budget.

Acting Mayor Jeff Emerson called the special meeting because he vetoed the budget that was adopted Sept. 15. In that meeting, Ward 3 Alderman Michael Antoine had to resign as Mayor Pro Tem so he and Alderman-At-Large Gene Rogers could adopt a budget Antoine had proposed.

That budget passed 2-1, with Ward 4 Alderman Vonnice Bodenschatz voting against the spending measure, and against a countywide property tax hike.

Ward 2 Alderman Margaret Jean Kalif, who is running for mayor, was out of town and did not vote on the millage increase for the budget.

But she was at Tuesday night's meeting, and championed amendments proposed by Emerson.

This time, Bodenschatz did not attend the budget session, so could not vote.

Kalif made the motion to adopt Emerson's budget recommendations with the stipulation that the salary of the mayor's executive secretary and the deputy clerk of court remain at their present level.

She said those positions, along with salaries of department heads, should be reviewed by the new mayor, and recommendations would be made by Nov. 29 on whether raises should be granted.

The Antoine budget had recommended pay raises of six to eight percent for all city employees, including department heads.

Emerson had complained that it should be up to the city's new chief executive to rate department heads, and decide if they deserve a raise.

He had also argued that sales tax projections of $350,000 were extremely low, and the new budget predicts sales tax revenues of $480,000 next year.

Antoine said he thought Aldermen "were sending a mixed message...and showing favoritism" under Emerson's proposal.

Emerson argued that he accepted all department requests on salaries and equipment "in total" and that represented "a dramatic increase over the budget that was adopted."

He said city workers can expect the raises to be in checks issued the second week of December.

The vote to accept the amendments was 2-1 with Antoine against.

The new budget shows estimated revenues at $4.1 million, compared with earlier estimates of $3.7 million.

There was no action taken on the property tax hike that was also passed by Antoine and Rogers previously. The millage increase would raise property taxes almost $100 annually inside the city and by around $45 for property owners in unincorporated areas.

Pass Christian High School

The old Pass Christian High School received a battering from Hurricane Camille and the school was moved to a new location on Second Street. Pass Christian's City Hall now sits at the old school site. (Photo courtesy of photographer Bob Hubbard of Waveland.) The Echo welcomes photos older than 25 years for publication. They will be returned to their owners.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reader feels unfairly treated by Echo, Waveland

Dear Editor:

Over the past few months I have sat back and read your biased articles and editorials concerning the parking lot on the beach at Waveland.

Your latest slur was on the front page of Thursday's (9/21) paper in which you refer to the property owners as "a group of Louisiana residents."

I wonder, had we been "a group of Mississippi residents," if the parking lot would still have been built?

After the shabby treatment we have been given by The Sea Coast Echo and the politicians of Waveland, I joyfully tossed into the garbage my "Waveland Welcome" t-shirt which I purchased six years ago when my husband and I invested in your city by buying beachfront property and improving it.

Who do you think pays high taxes on that beachfront property? I do — a Louisiana resident.

Who do you think has to go in her own yard and pick up others' beer bottles, soiled diapers, garbage and other disgusting things? I do — a Louisiana resident.

Who do you think subscribes to your paper, cable television, telephone, buys gasoline, shops in your stores, eats in your restaurants, employs local workers, and so forth? I do — a Louisiana resident.

This Louisiana resident has contributed to your economy for years, but no longer. This Louisiana resident will purchase everything she needs before she ever enters Waveland.

One thing is certain, other than paying high taxes and utility bills, this Louisiana resident will not be leaving behind any of her hard-earned money in Waveland, where not only has the welcome mat been pulled from under our feet — it has been thrown in our faces.

Nebraska elementary student seeks information on Mississippi

Dear Editor:

I am a student at Maxey Elementary in Lincoln, Nebraska. I have adopted your state as a class project. I will be doing a report and other projects to display what I learned about your state. It would be helpful if you could print this letter in your newspaper.

I could use postcards of your state, maps, brochures, information about wildlife, climate, industry, neat places to visit and any other information or items your readers feel could be helpful.

I have always wanted to visit your state and learn more about it. I hope your readers can help with my project. Thank you from Nebraska.

Thank you,

Parents need to be involved in children's education process

Dear Editor:

The Bay-Waveland School District and specifically North Bay Elementary are using the non-graded multi-age classes as part of their overall curriculum. It combines first, second and third graders in the same classroom.

When presented with this option by the school, I was told that it would allow my children even more freedom to learn and develop higher level thinking skills that would better prepare them for the future. To the contrary, I found that my children did not benefit from this program and in reality learned very little in the eight months that they were in these classes.

I found a major lack of structure and discipline, which led to confusion and frustration. I found that there was a lack of basic skills being taught necessary for reading, writing and math. Good study habits and posture were being neglected while children sat on the floor most of the day rather than at desk or at tables. The lack of text books, which are either never used or rarely used, concerned me.

I also found that much of the responsibility for learning was placed on the child rather than the teacher. This is a point of view that I just cannot comprehend when it is being applied to 6-, 7-, and 8-year-olds.

After reaching a point that I felt the situation could not be resolved within the system, I took my children home and began home schooling them. They are doing very well and have even advanced beyond their grade level to a degree.

To all parents with children in the system I would say, beware. Don't be afraid to say what you think. Get involved and research what is going on in your schools.

Don't be satisfied with a pat answer of, "Your child is doing fine." Demand evidence of his daily progress.

Get in touch with educators in other districts and other states. Ask them what your child should be doing. Check into all your options, including the one I have chosen, which is to home school.

You may not be interested in PTO fund-raisers or field day activities, but you should be interested in your child's fundamental education!

Murphy letter omits important information

Dear Editor:

The letter from Ken Murphy in the September 21 issue of the paper was disappointing, albeit entirely predictable. Mr. Murphy spent about 17 column inches of space complaining that members of the City Council were abusing his family's rights as property owners. Unfortunately, throughout his diatribe, several important pieces of information were left out.

Our democracy was developed in such a manner that the community as a whole is not supposed to suffer so that a few of its members will benefit.

I have an advanced degree and more than 20 years' experience in coastal engineering. It is well known among coastal engineers that a beach is the best protection for a shoreline. Since arriving in Bay St. Louis nearly five years ago, I have offered that fact to whomever in city government would listen.

We now have that beach, except for that portion left unfilled with sand at the Murphys' property. Unfortunately, that hole could result in the loss of much of the rest of the beach in a storm — and it doesn't have to be a Hurricane Camille.

That would once again put Beach Blvd. and the houses and businesses along it, in jeopardy. Even if we have no destructive storm, it will now cost considerable additional money to correct the problem caused by the Murphys' threat of a suit and the mayor's capitulation.

Other important pieces of information left out of Mr. Murphy's letter include the following, which I understand to be true. The mayor and city attorney withheld the fact that the Murphys had not signed the easement for construction of the beach until it was too late for reasonable resolution.

And, the state attorney general ruled, unfortunately after the contractor began demobilization of his equipment, that the property was public, a piece of information that was known over a week ago.

It is certainly a shame that Mr. Murphy and other members of his family are so willing to allow personal profit to be such a driving force. They certainly seem to be looking out for their own interests without regard to those of the rest of the community.

Animal lover lashes out at those who drop off pets

To the Editor:

I am an animal lover, and I just can't understand how people can just take a dog or cat and dump it on someone else's property and hope they take it in.

This recently happened at my daughter's house — a small, male, mostly white, I guess it is be part chihuahua and part terrier about three or four years old.

She, my daughter, took him in hoping someone would come looking for him. She put notices on half a dozen telephone poles, a large sign in front of her house. No one came.

The poor little dog sits in the window and watches for his owner to come for him.

The Waveland shelter has no one looking for him, nor does the shelter in Gulfport.

What kind of cruel people can do this to a little innocent dog? They must really be low class, uncaring, worthless, inhuman.

I can't really say what I would like to do about them — you wouldn't print it.

So it looks like little "Peppi"

(we call him that) will end up at the shelter and destroyed. He doesn't deserve that.

I have saved two dogs from being destroyed — I can't take another. My daughter has adopted two, also to keep them from the gas chamber.

Come on, people, either take care of your pets or don't get them.

God will punish someone for this — dogs and all animals also go to God. There they can talk — they will tell!

"CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Saturday is the big day for the St. Ann-St. John Seafood Jamboree and Political Rally.

Festivities are 10 a.m.-9 p.m. at St. Ann Catholic Church on Lower Bay Road.

There will be all types of foods, with specials by such famous locals as Chef Chappy and Chef Ken Hymel. The St. Ann-St. John parishioners do a very fine job each year at the annual seafood festival, and the food is always delicious.

An old-fashioned cake walk is scheduled. I would have to say there are probably those who do not know what a cake walk is or have never participated in one.

Live entertainment is scheduled by Bill Connelly, 11 a.m.-1 p.m.; Local Country Band, 2-4 p.m.; and also Local Country Band, 6-9 p.m.

Kids' activities will include a space walk, hay ride, face painting, etc.

The ever-popular Crab Derby is on tap, too.

On the many food specialties, take-outs will be available.

Sounds like it will be great fun Saturday at the Seafood Jamboree; I hope to see you there.

Proceeds from the Seafood Jamboree go to the church.

I was saddened to hear about the Friday death of Bill Hilliker of Bay St. Louis.

Bill, at age 91, had resided in Bay St. Louis for many years; his activities included the Bay St. Louis Rotary Club.

Bill played professionally in both football and basketball in the New York area when the sports were in their infancy.

The professional football team he played quarterback for moved its franchise to Green Bay, Wisconsin. Bill told me he decided to stay in the New York area and play basketball for two reasons. First, he made more money playing basketball; second, it wasn't as cold in the New York area.

He indicated players were only paid a few dollars per game for both professional football and basketball in the 1920's.

I wish Bill's wife Meg, along with son, daughter, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchild the best.

Bill always had a positive attitude, and will be missed by his many friends in the area.

The United Way of South Mississippi's annual campaign is now underway in Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River counties.

The United Way of South Mississippi funds some 48 agencies in the three counties.

These agencies serve residents from pre-birth to the elderly and all ages in between.

The Hancock County Day of Caring was a great success, according to chairman Toni Larroux, who reported some 24 businesses participated in collecting food for the Food Pantry.

The Hancock County Food Pantry last year alone served some 2,668 deserving people.

Along with Toni, I want to personally thank each and every one for the help with the Hancock County United Way's Day of Caring.

If you want more information on the United Way, or would like to make a contribution, just give us a call at 467-9501.

flies" have nothing to do with butter, and they are not even flies.

JOYCE B. BOWERS

Joyce B. Bowers, GRI, began her real estate career in 1976 primarily to fill in a void left by her retirement from a co-owned electrical contracting business. However, because of her "love affair" with people, she became a broker manager for a local firm for several years and feels that it is this experience that helped set her goals in matching willing sellers to willing buyers.

A broker associated with Dantagnan Realty since 1980, Joyce has served on various realtor committees, local and state level, as a past president for the Gulf Coast Women's Council of Realtors, past director of the Board of Realtors and recipient of WCR's Realtor of the Year Award.

A strong advocate of real estate educational programs, she has amassed many continual education and college credits in real estate subjects, and is of the opinion every day in itself is a learning experience.

Place of Art to benefit Hope Haven

Place of Art has selected Viki Lever featured artist of the month.

Lever, who owns the Paper Moon collectible shop at Main and Toulme streets in Bay St. Louis, designed a collage entitled, "Fisherman's Altar," which is for sale and on display at her shop. The piece of art was unveiled Sept. 12 in ceremonies in front of the Bay St. Louis City Hall.

A portion of proceeds from the sale of the artwork will go to Hope Haven, the shelter that is being built for abused and neglected children of Hancock County, and to the Hancock County Historical Society.

More funds are expected to be raised on Oct. 6, when Place of Art hosts its gala Patron's Party, according to Ruth Thompson.

The party is scheduled from 7 to 10 p.m. at our Lady of the Gulf Community Center on S.

Beach Blvd.

Thompson said there will be an open bar and hors d'oeuvres. Tickets are $25 a person, and to reserve yours, call Ruth at 467-8201.

Works of more than 50 artists from the Gulf Coast will be exhibited during the gala, and bid on through a silent auction.

Voter registration deadline

October 7 is the last day to register to vote in the November general election. Since the deadline falls on a Saturday, county circuit clerk offices will be open until noon that day to register voters.

Prospective voters may register at the circuit clerk's office or by mail. Mail-in voter registration forms are available from circuit clerks or directly from the Secretary of State's office. Mail-in forms must be witnessed by a registered voter in the county of the registrant and be mailed by October 7.

Since voter registration was passed in 1992, more than 30,000 Mississippians have registered by mail to vote. Those benefiting include rural residents, people who work out of their home county or in extended shifts, and the home-bound.

This year, voters will cast ballots in contests for governor, all statewide offices, legislators, county offices, two constitutional amendments and the term limits initiative.

Voters living or working away from their home county are eligible to vote absentee.

For more information, contact circuit clerk Pam Metzler at 467-5265, or call the Secretary of State's election hotline: 1-800-829-6786.

P.A.T.S. to hold car wash

The Problems Affecting the Teen Scene (P.A.T.S.) organization will hold a car wash and bake sale this Saturday, Sept. 30, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

President Sondra McClelland said the event will take place on Hwy. 90 and Eastbrook Street.

The car wash will cost $2, and McClelland said delicious, homemade cookies, cakes and pies will also be on sale.

Proceeds will help the non-profit organization, which helps teens in Hancock County.

Thompson said on Saturday, Oct. 7, the first two blocks of downtown Main Street will be blocked off, and turned into a pedestrian mall. Artists will be exhibiting and selling their work. There will also be a quilting exhibit and a children's art exhibit, Thompson said.

Place of Art is a non-profit organization composed of more than 50 local artists and businessmen, according to Thompson. Its goals are to showcase Bay St. Louis as a haven for artists, and to acquire an art museum and public art for the city of Bay St. Louis.

Mayor congratulates artist

Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre congratulates artist Viki Lever for being selected artist of the month by Place of Art. Her collage entitled, "Fisherman's Altar" is on display at her Paper Moon shop, at the corner of Main and Toulme Streets. Proceeds from the sale will benefit Hope Haven and the Hancock County Historical Society. (Photo by Ed Lepoma).

Thought for meditation:
In taking revenge, a man is equal to his enemy; in passing over it, he is superior.

To quarrel with a neighbor is foolish; a man with good sense holds his tongue.

Prov. 11:12

Treasure Bay Casino

Miller approved

Treasure Bay Gaming & Resorts, Inc., announced that the Mississippi Gaming Commission approved Francis Miller as a shareholder to participate in the business affairs of the company, and Mark Calvert as the company's chief financial officer, secretary and treasurer.

Miller is the original founder and investor for the Biloxi-based casino company. Prior to gaming activities in Mississippi, he developed Arctic Alaska Fisheries Corp. from a small fishing company based in Seattle, Wash., to the nation's largest factory trawler fleet, converting it to one of the biggest domestic fishing companies in the United States.

The company went public in 1988 and eventually employed more than 2,300 people and operated 34 vessels. The Seattle Times recently stated that Miller has "redefined commercial fishing in the North Pacific," and "is admired throughout his industry."

Bernie Burkholder, president and chief executive officer of Treasure Bay, said, "The involvement of Mr. Miller will solidify our plan of reorganization that has been submitted by Treasure Bay to the Bankruptcy Court where Chapter 11 proceedings are taking place. The approval today represents a major step forward in our restructuring plan. It brings strength not only to the business, but also to the morale of the management and employees of Treasure Bay."

Treasure Bay Corp. owns Treasure Bay Casino Resort in Biloxi. The vessel is a replica of an 18th century Caribbean pirate ship with more than 66,000 square feet of gaming space, in addition to dancing, entertainment and hotel space.

Grand Casino

Grand Casino Gulfport is pleased to announce that John W. McReynolds III has joined the company as vice president of the Food and Beverage Department. The Houston, Texas, native brings more than 20 years of experience in the hospitality industry with him, including ownership of several fine dining restaurants.

McReynolds received both a BA (Business Management, Baylor University, 1980) and a BS (Conrad Hilton School for Hotel & Restaurant Management, University of Houston, 1982).

with five to six riders per hour," Hearn said. "People get on and off at their leisure."

Neal added that "I can't tell you exactly how many people are riding (in the Bay area)." But that did little to pacify council members.

"We either need to cut it back or do away with it all together," Black said. "I want to know who is getting off at the Magic and who is getting off at the downtown stop."

"We need to decide is that money being utilized for the majority of people in Bay St. Louis. My idea of transit is to get people off of the road in their cars."

"At this point, we don't have enough information to warrant money spent on it."

Hearn said CTA "would do everything to cut excess, but I would beg you not to eliminate the system. You will find a lot of people are using and depending on the system."

Hearn said that he knows of at least several riders who are using the bus to commute between Bay St. Louis and Gulfport for work, a sentiment echoed by Councilman James Rutherford.

Rutherford said he has been told of at least "eight to nine people" that are using the transit to commute.

"Plus the kids get on and go down the coast," he added. "I feel it's a good thing. I'm willing to go with it a little bit longer. We are still providing the area with a service."

Hearn added the buses are also bringing in tourists from Gulfport "who are spending money here." He said elimination of the transit system would be another financial blow to the Bay downtown merchants.

CTA Commission member Bob Travers of Bay St. Louis said discontinuation of the transit system would "eliminate another source of revenue," adding that additional revenue producers are needed for downtown merchants to survive.

"We would be isolating ourselves again," he said. "We want to make Bay St. Louis an integral part of the Coast."

Councilman Charlie Scianna said he was reluctant to provide any funding to CTA. Mayor Eddie Favre suggested that if the council votes against the CTA proposal, then an alternative would be for the city to reinstate its own transit service.

Black added that he would like to see the routes changed. Currently, the loop takes the bus from the Waveland Resort Inn, to the Magic, and then to downtown. Black said he would like to see the routes altered so the buses will go to the downtown stop prior to stopping at the Magic.

"Why not come downtown (when passengers) still have money?" he asked.

Hearn and Neal agreed to take a survey at CTA's expense this week to attempt to determine the number of riders in the Bay area. They are expected to make a report at the next council meeting on Tuesday.

Jubilee

They said the mood of employees was "quite upbeat."

He said Alpha's move into the Greenville market would open up better promotion possibilities for Jubilee's experienced workforce, who might later want to transfer to Greenville.

Because Alpha's stock is traded on the stock exchange, Kingsbury said The Securities and Exchange Commission required the company to issue a press release to the media about two months ago revealing plans to purchase the Cotton Club boat, currently owned privately by 16 to 18 investors.

That press release in July, however, did not mention any plans that Alpha proposed to move the Jubilee barge to Greenville and replace it with the Cotton Club on Bayou Caddy.

Kingsbury said, "It ain't a done deal," but he expected the sale would be finalized in the next few days. However, Sandy Freedman, Alpha's attorney in New York, said he expected it would take two weeks to close the sale. Freedman would not divulge what Alpha offered to pay for the Cotton Club, but said the sale "was not contingent on the vessel swap."

Thomas W. Aro, Chief Executive Officer for Alpha Gulf Coast, told supervisors that sheer economics was the driving force behind Alpha's decision to replace the Jubilee with the smaller vessel.

"Our experience here has been less than thrilling," he said.

Aro said the gambling market has flattened out with the opening of casinos in the New Orleans area, and forecasters don't see business picking up in the foreseeable future.

"The potential of the market doesn't justify us keeping the larger boat here," he said.

Aro said investors suffered "substantial losses" over the last six months, but Jubilee was able to continue operating because principal stockholders "have belied up to the bar and subsidized those losses."

Aro later told the Echo that Jubilee lost about $4 million over the last six months, and County Comptroller Patty Greer said sales tax revenues were down substantially from a year ago.

Jubilee pays to the county 3.2 percent of its gross revenues each month. Greer said August collections totaled $76,257, compared to $137,500 in August of 1994.

District 1 Supervisor Robert Peterson said he was "totally shocked" when he heard about the boat swap.

"The first thing I thought about was jobs, and how many people might lose their jobs," he said.

Kingsbury said the company doesn't plan any layoffs and wants to use as many employees as they can during the transition period.

"They might not be bussing tables in a restaurant, but they will be wiping down slot machines or doing something," said Kingsbury.

He added that others who have accumulated paid vacations might opt to take time off during the transition period.

"And, if there's any temporary layoffs, we'll try to work with people with the state employment commission office," said Kingsbury.

He added that all employees will maintain their seniority and medical benefits during the downtime.

Ladner and Supervisors Howard Lizana and Wilmer Seymour were concerned about the looks of the boat that would replace the Jubilee barge.

By coincidence, Gerald Gex, the board's attorney, had recently stopped in Greenville on the way back from a business trip and said he and his wife had visited the Cotton Club boat.

He told supervisors, "I was not impressed. It reminded me of a small 'Love Boat.' It's an excursion thing."

Lizana said he "liked the Bourbon Street, festive feel of the Jubilee."

Lizana said he hoped the boat coming in would be bigger than the Biloxi Belle, with higher ceilings.

Lizana said he "hated to see the Jubilee go," but was glad to see Alpha wasn't pulling out of the site altogether.

Kingsbury and Aro assured supervisors that the pier area would maintain its festive atmosphere, and employees will still make it, "the friendliest place people can go."

He said the name of the boat coming here would probably change to Jubilation I and the barge going to Greenville would be renamed Jubilation II. Carnival Cruise Lines owes the trademark copyright for the name Jubilee, but had allowed Alpha to use it, he said.

Aro said the Jubilation restaurant would remain at Bayou Caddy, and officials plan to add a new shoredside restaurant and a special-events building. He said the new facilities would be connected to the vessel by a skywalk.

District 4 Supervisor Wilmer Seymour told Alpha officials, "Jubilee is a first-class facility. I hope people won't be turned off by this smaller boat."

Seymour said he thought the smaller boat would only compound Alpha's marketing problems. He also worried out loud that Jubilee might lose some or all of its customer base by closing four weeks or longer.

"It's always scary to be closed down for any length of time," said Kingsbury.

He said the company planned mailers to its customers base to keep them informed of the situation, and would plan special by-invitation only events leading up to the re-opening of the gambling boat.

"You're really going to have to do some marketing," Seymour warned.

The Cotton Club and the Las Vegas are currently the only two gambling boats operating in Greenville, which is in Washington County. They bring in a combined $6 million a month.

Greenville is situated on the Mississippi River in the Delta cottonfields. It is on U.S. 82, midway between Vicksburg and Tunica, which also boasts several gambling facilities.

Washington County Tax Assessor John Greco said a property assessment of $13 million has been put on the Cotton Club boat, the gaming equipment aboard and its 1200-space parking lot.

Washington County Tax Collector Mary Andrzejewski said the Cotton Club paid $284,000 in 1994 property taxes with about the same amount levied in 1995. She said the '95 taxes won't be due until Feb. 1.

"But, we are having our attorney look into what we need to protect ourselves should the boat leave our jurisdiction," Andrzejewski said.

Technically, the state has a lien against the Jubilee barge, the equipment aboard, and all the improvements Jubilee made on shorelands it leases from the Cure family at Bayou Caddy.

The property went on the bidding block last August when the county auctioned off hundreds of parcels of property for unpaid taxes.

After nobody bid on the property, it legally reverted to the state, but Jubilee officials held extensive meetings with the assessor until a compromise was worked out, and finally accepted by the Board of Supervisors.

The $350,000 which Jubilee still owes is supposed to be paid in monthly installments, with full payment by next February.

Gex added that the "only credible evidence that exists indicates that such therapy is not necessary (for Elizabeth Richardson) to benefit educationally as defined by Mississippi law promulgated under IDEA."

Gex is contending Walker's findings are erroneous when applied to Mississippi law. Walker said in his findings that the district satisfied Mississippi requirements promulgated under IDEA, but not those that exist in "maximum benefit" states. However, Mississippi is a "minimum benefit" state, and it is Gex's contention that Walker legally erred.

Gex further stated that some of the statements in the Richardson's motion were "intended to inflame and emotionally prejudice" the court.

Tournament benefits American Cancer Society

Frank Bacino dodged the water hazards, landscape plants and concrete stairs to emerge as individual low score winner of the third annual Indoor Putting Tournament at the Diamondhead Days Inn Sept. 15.

Bacino and his partner, Danny Hoener, competed for hole sponsor Cellular South. They were nudged out of first place team score by formidable opponents Mike Meyers and Jimmy Loiacano, who represented hole sponsors State Farm Insurance and Coast Youth Ballet Academy.

Meyers and Loiacano donated their $100 cash prize back to the charity.

The event raised close to $3,500 for the Hancock County ACS chapter, according to tournament chairman Clement Ladner. The money is returned to the community through patient services and education programs.

The complete list of winners includes:

Individual Low Score: Frank Bacino of Cellular South;

Individual Second Lowest Score: Michael Haas Jr. of Haas and Haas, Attorneys at Law;

Individual Most Holes-In-One: Tom Koger of Interiors by Faith/Classic Interiors/The

Magnolia Tree;

Team Most Holes-In-One: Tom Koger and Bob Gorman of Interiors by Faith/Classic Interiors/The Magnolia Tree;

Team Low Score: Mike

Meyers and Jimmy Loiacano of State Farm Insurance/Coast Youth Ballet Academy;

Team Second Lowest Score: Frank Bacino and Danny Hoener of Cellular South;

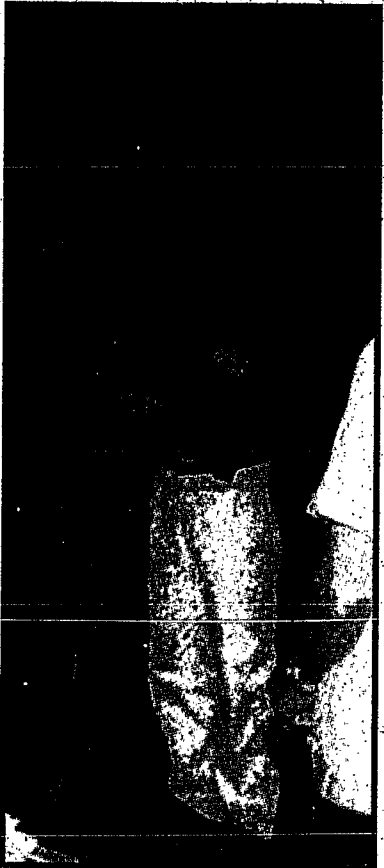

Team Third Lowest Score: Noel Grafe and Charley Dellenger of Hancock Bank.

Hole sponsors for the event included: Anthony's Men's Wear; A.G. Edwards/Paul Eckrich; Cellular South of Bay St. Louis; Gulfport and Gautier; Century 21 Realty, Inc./Dan Smith; SMB Radiology; Hancock Medical Center; Bay-Waveland Mini-Storage/Jerry Binner; Peoples Bank; Hancock Bank;

College Football Highlights

For Sept. 30

Exactly a year ago we picked Georgia to upset then-No. 11-ranked Alabama, and we came within a minute and 12 seconds of being right. It was 28-26 Georgia in University, Ala., until the Crimson Tide's Michael Proctor kicked a 32-yard field goal for the 29-28 Alabama win. In that game, Georgia QB Eric Zeier became the most prolific passer in Southeastern Conference history, but he gladly would've traded his yardage record for a win.

This weekend, in Athens, Ga., Bulldog QB Mike Bobo should get that win: We're picking Georgia again, by eight points. Once again it's a risky pick, because Alabama has had a week off to stew over its shocking loss to Arkansas, while the Bulldogs had to battle Mississippi last weekend, but we still think they'll beat the Crimson Tide for the first time since 1990.

In the Big Eight, Colorado visits Oklahoma, and the Buffaloes should comfortably extend their unbeaten string over the Sooners to seven games. In '94, Rashaan Salaam ran for 161 yards and scored four first-half touchdowns as Colorado pounded Oklahoma 45-7 in Boulder. It was the Buffaloes' highest score ever against the Sooners, who avoided a shut-out only by throwing a TD pass with 23 seconds left. On Saturday Oklahoma should manage to stay within two TDs.

When Ohio State hosts Notre Dame, there's not much history to go on: The Buckeyes and Fighting Irish have met only twice, in 1935 and '36. Notre Dame won both of those games, 18-13 and 7-2, but there's no way the Irish defense can hold the powerful Ohio State offense to those measly point totals. The Buckeyes will win easily.

In Los Angeles, Southern Cal takes on Arizona State and UCLA faces Fresno State. Neither game should be close, but both could be. Since Arizona State was crushed by Nebraska two weeks ago, USC will want to do likewise to keep the attention of the poll watchers. And after its loss to Oregon, UCLA will want to thrash Fresno State, but the Bruins may be in for a fight. Fresno State coach Jim Sweeney, a master big-game motivator, is 13-7 against Pacific-10 teams since '81. The Bulldogs have beaten six Pac-10 teams, and Sweeney & Co. would love to make it seven.

So far our predictions have been predictably accurate. Through Sept. 16, we've picked 425 games right and 134 wrong (with 12 ties), a percentage of .760.

NFL Forecast for Sunday and Monday Oct. 1-2

Dallas, 34-Washington, 16
(Sunday) The Cowboys held the Redskins to two touchdowns in their last two games in 1994, while scoring eight themselves, winning 34-7 and 31-7. Washington's flashes of inspired offense won't be enough.

Denver, 20-Seattle, 17
This divisional series has been much closer recently: The Broncos have won five straight from the Seahawks, but Seattle's sloppy play was the difference in last year's 16-9 and 17-10 losses.

*Houston, 18-Jacksonville, 12

A month ago the Oilers spoiled the Jaguars' home debut with a not-too-exciting 10-3 victory. It looks like Houston and Jacksonville may have the basement of the AFC Central all to themselves.

*Indianapolis, 26-St. Louis, 19

The last time these two teams met, in Los Angeles in '89, the Rams won 31-17. St. Louis got off to a fast start, but we don't think it will last — especially against the Colts' running game.

Kansas City, 24-Arizona, 20

Though they may be less productive on offense than usual against the Cardinals' defense, the Chiefs will find a way to win. They haven't played since '86, when the Cardinals beat K.C. 23-14.

Miami, 32 -Cincinnati, 15

Since the last Bengals victory over the Dolphins, in '77, Miami has won seven in a row, including last year's historic first meeting between father-and-son coaches, Don and Dave Shula, 23-7.

New England, 31-Atlanta, 28

This could be a wild one, matching teams that live by the pass but don't defend well against it. After opening against Cleveland, Miami and S.F., N.E. had a week off and should be sharper.

Oakland, 29-N.Y. Jets, 21

The Raiders have won their last three games with the Jets, most recently 24-20 in '93. N.Y. would be better off if this game were in Oakland, a continent away from the sniping New York media.

Philadelphia, 27-New Orleans, 23

Not only do they have a more well-rounded offense, but the Eagles should be able to contain the Saints' strong passing game. Two years ago, the last time they met, Philadelphia won 37-26.

*Pittsburgh, 30-San Diego, 20

After a come-from-behind 37-34 win over the Steelers on the last week of last season, the Chargers beat them again in the AFC title game, 17-13. It doesn't look like they'll meet there again.

*San Francisco, 35-N.Y. Giants, 14

The 49ers march steadily onward, while the Giants stumble around looking for some way to ignite their attack. S.F. and N.Y. haven't butted heads since a 44-3 49ers rout in the '93 playoffs.

Tampa Bay, 17-Carolina, 10

The Panthers shouldn't expect any expansion sympathy from the Buccaneers, who needed a season and a half to get their first win in '77. Carolina's chances aren't going to get much better.

*Cleveland, 28-Buffalo, 24

(Monday) This series, led by the Browns, 7-3, hasn't been renewed since the Bills pounded Cleveland 42-0 in '90. The Browns are not only better, they've won more often on Monday nights than Buffalo.

(Open date: Chicago, Detroit, Green Bay, Minnesota)

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1995-3B

BETWEEN THE LINES

By Richard Meek

QUITTER
The word jumped off of the page onto unbelieving eyes. Could a high school football coach, the mold of youth, the mentor of the young, be labeling teenagers with such an atrocious label? Sad to say, it was true.

The actions of Pass Christian football coach Joe Brown last weekend are inexcusable. Admittedly angered by the departure of three players, Brown had the word "QUITTER" stamped in red ink on the players' individual pictures in the game program. It was an act that managed to embarrass the three players and their families in front of the entire community.

To her credit, Pass Christian High School's principal Kay Rendfrey said she did not authorize the action, would not have approved it, and guaranteed it would never happen again.

Pass Christian School Superintendent Dr. Philip Terrell said he learned of the incident on Monday afternoon and instructed Pass Athletic Director Lonnie Tillman to investigate. He also admitted the players' pictures were stamped without his approval or prior knowledge.

So the question continues to nag: How could a coach humiliate three teenagers, three of his former players, in public? Certainly their actions did not warrant such a cruel violation of their emotions.

But to hear Brown tell it, he was justified.

"You have a problem with that?" the coach asked a reporter. "I don't see anything wrong with it."

He went on to say that he was "astonished" a reporter would even question his motives or actions, and added that he didn't think the incident was "worth mentioning."

Brown said the three players quit because the Pirates had lost their first four games. Now make that five.

"There's never a guarantee we would win," he said. "The kids made a commitment."

Brown added that at the time when the players quit, the game programs could not be reprinted. Game programs for the season are printed before the first game, although team lineups are inserted before each game.

Nevertheless, as a teacher and a coach, Brown, more so than most, should understand publicly degrading an impressionable teenager can only do more harm than good.

Maybe the players should not have quit. When an athlete signs up for any sport, the coach rightfully assumes he or she will be there for the duration of the season, barring injury or academic difficulties (more on that shortly).

However, the circumstances surrounding the departures have not been made public, so it is unfair to pass judgement. What is fair to judge is Brown's decision.

Understandably, he's angry. The players who departed were key contributors. But there are far more effective methods to address the situation than a public flogging.

Brown also closed the door on any possibility of the players returning. It is conceivable that at least one or more of the players would have reversed his thinking and petitioned Brown to be allowed to return. Remember, these are adolescent emotions at work.

Perhaps even more incredible than the act itself, is that on Monday Brown showed no remorse. He said the players "must be taught right and wrong" and that he is "supposed to teach kids to have character." He added that he saw no injustice.

But this is the same coach who attempted to persuade the school board to rescind its "No Pass, No Play" policy a year ago when several of his players were declared ineligible in the middle of an outstanding season. Isn't it supposed to hold true that it's academics first, athletics second?

It is now in the hands of Rendfrey and the school board to decide whether Brown will be reprimanded. The Pirate coach should be dealt with in the harshest possible fashion. There is absolutely no justification for anyone entrusted with the responsibility of developing of young people to take such actions.

Homecoming fever is running high in the Bay-Waveland area as Bay High School and St. Stanislaus prepare for their annual festivities. It is a shame that the two schools cannot reach a compromise to ensure that this pettiness of scheduling their homecomings on the same weekend does not happen.

It is unfair to all involved, especially fans and alumni, of both schools.

Do enjoy the games, whichever one you may choose to attend. Events such as homecoming celebrate all that is good in high school athletics.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

Mackerel, red fish and otters

It's time to go fishin' y'all. Kersplash, crash, boom, blower (now, that is an interesting word. I wonder what it means?). Those were the sounds that occurred several hundred yards off the seawall last week. All of the commotion was caused by a school of jack fish several hundred yards long chasing mullet.

You would see mullet jumping frantically out of the water, then you would see a huge spray of water where a jack fish would strike at the mullet. The sight was so incredible that people were stopping their cars all along the seawall to gape at the explosive fish strikes in the water.

What all this means is the salt content of the Sound is way up there in the seawater range. In other words, the salt content is high enough to bring in the offshore fish to the shallow waters of the Sound.

The high salt content of the water is causing the Spanish-speaking fish to come close to the seawall. They are chasing their favorite food: glass minnows.

Anyway, the Spanish mackerel have been making their appearance in the mornings, on a high tide. They seem to be most numerous on mornings when the water is "glassed out." I can only speculate they are more plentiful under smooth water conditions because they can see their food better.

Speaking of food, as I said earlier, it looks like the most special favorite food of the mackerel are small glass minnows.

I am calling the minnows glass minnows as I do not know their proper name. They have a small opaque line the full length of their side, and the rest of their bodies are so clear you can see through the minnow from one side to the other. I guess you could say they are clear as glass. (Boy, that was bad.)

Mackerel seem to be among nature's most streamlined fish. They are shaped like a flat bullet. They have a forked tail that seems to be made for speed as well as strength.

When mackerel jump out of the water they exit and enter the water with very little splashing. This is unlike mullet, which tend to jump out of the water and land with a splash on their side when they re-enter. You might also notice that mackerel jump out and get back in the water much faster than mullet.

Another fascinating aspect of Spanish mackerel is their coloration. They could be called pretty. They have a bluish body color, with multicolored spots of various size along their bodies, which distinguishes them from other species of fish.

Now that I have given y'all the description, and so forth, maybe I should talk about some ways to catch the critters. First off, you are gonna need a hook. (Now, that is a novel idea.)

Seriously, you should consider at least a 4/0 carlile, or there about. You will need to have about 12 to 18 inches of good stout leader attached to your hook.

I strongly recommend you use some type of steel leader material. The steel leader material seems to hold up the best as mackerel have very sharp teeth. By the way, did I tell y'all that mackerel have plenty of good, sharp teeth? Now you know.

The bait to use for mackerel is something that looks like the small minnows they usually feed upon. Some folks have had success with the good old shad rigs. Some folks have had success with silver spoons with a yellow buck tail.

I personally prefer the "straw bait."

The straw bait is a homemade contraption using a plain ordinary drinking straw. The most effective straw is the one with one yellow and one red stripe.

The way to make a straw bait is to take about 12 inches of plastic coated steel leader material, attach a swivel snap and a 4/0 hook on one end.

Next, take a drinking straw and cut it in half. Slide one half over the leader material. Place a one-quarter ounce cone head sinker on the leader right on top of the straw.

Finally, place a swivel on the end of the leader so you can attach the straw bait to your line.

You should fish the straw bait with a fast retrieve so the mackerel will think it is a glass minnow trying to get away from them.

Keep a supply of straws in your pocket because the mackerel will tear them up in a big hurry if you are lucky enough to get into a school of them.

Before I close out this week, I gotta tell y'all about an experience one of the grandturtles had by the Bayou Caddy boat launch.

Parker Maness was fishing with dead shrimp on the bottom in hopes of catching some trophy-size "horned trout" when he hooked a red that went better than 20 inches. While he was attempting to land the red, an otter grabbed the red by the tail and held on tight. The otter came up for air three or four times without letting go of the tail of the red.

Finally, after much struggling, the otter let go of the tail of the red and came to the surface with a most curious and mischievous look in his eye. It was almost like he wanted to say words like "%%&# to Parker for taking his dinner away.

By the way, the fish was longer than the otter, so he must have been really hungry. Parker Maness will have a true fish story to tell his friends back at school in Baton Rouge, La.

This week's wonderful wise words: The Golden Arches have the best colored drinking straws for Spanish mackerel bait.

Do you always need 15-pound red fish to catch otters, Turtle?

Outdoor safety

Take a dive today when Mississippi Outdoors travels to the Coast to join rescue scuba divers practice their life-saving techniques. Watch as three state agencies come together to provide undersea rescue to Coast residents.

Deer hunting season is almost here, and now is the time to know all the latest deer hunting rules and regulations. This year, many things have changed that the deer hunter needs to know before he goes afield. Season lengths, doe versus buck and the new four-point rule will be covered in this timely story.

And just to get you in the mood for a little deer hunting, Mississippi Outdoors visits a 3-D archery range that lets the bow hunter practice his archery hunting skills. Through the miracle of modern electronics the bow hunter can simulate a large variety of hunting scenarios and never get cold or wet. It's big time video fun for the hunter and non-hunter alike.

This time of year is special to the Mississippi outdoorsman. With the hunting seasons coming on, the hunter should be prepared, and the best way to start is with a hunter safety instruction course offered by the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks. Follow along as host Mara Hartmann takes such a course and earns her certificate.

Mississippi Outdoors airs Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. and repeats Sundays at 5:30 p.m. on ETV.

Parker ends perfect weekend at Sun Coast

BY MELVIN BRAND
Donald Parker of his Tubbs Marine-sponsored pro stock to a feature win in Hattiesburg Friday night before claiming the feature and a heat win at Pass Christian's Sun Coast Speedway Saturday night.

Parker started on the second row behind Bubba McQueen and Mitchell Williams. As the green flag fell, Williams and McQueen ran side by side until they made contact going into turn three, sending McQueen off the track. Parker took advantage of the situation to move past Williams as they raced back to the yellow.

McQueen was through for the night as they lined up for a single file restart.

Parker was never challenged on his way to the checkers. Williams held onto the second spot. Scott Holt moved past a couple of cars to take third place. Wallace Allen held off Larry Ciffra for the win in the heat race.

Billy Joe Schonewitz made it look easy in his Arts Automotive-sponsored late model sportsman. Schonewitz, like Parker, also won the feature in Hattiesburg Friday.

Schonewitz and K.I. Davis III started on the front row in the Sun Coast feature. Schonewitz moved to the front, where he held a comfortable lead over the rest of the field.

Davis had the second spot all to himself, while Mike Ladner lost the battle for third to Mitchell Williams. Marty Broadus won the earlier heat race over Williams and Ladner.

The four-cylinder modified division saw David Allison set a new track record before lining up on the pole alongside Marus Jacobs in the feature. As the race went green, Allison moved to the lead where he went flag to flag for the win.

Jamie Favre worked his way past Jacobs and Sellier to claim the second spot. David Necaise worked his way into fourth behind Jacobs as the checkers flew on the 13-car field. Jimmy Necaise managed to hold off Jerry Favre to claim the win in heat race action.

Lonnie Scarbrough shared the front row with Rodney Bruce for the start of the 20-car field of street stocks. Scarbrough moved to the front, followed by Bruce on the first lap. Very early in the race, Bruce made contact with Scarbrough, causing a slight bobble among the front runners. This set off a chain reaction, sending cars in all directions. Heat winner Chris Moran, along with Chuckie Smith, winner of last week's Pepsi World 150, suffered major damage.

On the restart it was Scarbrough, Ernie Parker and William Marin running up front. Marin's car appeared to lock up on the front straightaway. The red flag came out as Marin was nailed from the rear, causing major damage to his car.

Marin appeared to be okay, but was transported to the hospital for a checkup just to make sure.

On the restart, Cliff Darby moved into the third spot as the race ended. Parker failed to pass Tech and was disqualified, moving Darby into second, followed by Ryan Plaisance and Rodney Barber. Walter Gibbs and Michael Williams also won heat races.

The rookie class went to David Scott, followed by Allen Kilpatrick and heat winner Steven Pate II.

Next Saturday night will feature the "Winged Outlaw" Cajun Sprints, ladies' race and kids' bicycle races, along with the regular program.

Archery/deer hunting to begin

Archery season for deer opens across Mississippi Saturday, Sept. 30, and continues through Nov. 17.

In season dates published earlier by the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks, the archery season for deer was set to open October 1 by law.

However, another state law mandates that when a game season opening falls on a Sunday, the season shall open the preceding Saturday.

So, now the first archery season for deer will open Saturday,

Sept. 30, statewide.

This revised opening date applies also to the following wildlife management areas: Anderson-Tully, Bienville, Bucatunna, Canal Section, Caney Creek, Caston Creek, Chickasaw, Choctaw, Divide Section, John Bell Williams, John W. Starr, Lake George, Leroy Percy, Mahannah, Malmaison, Okatibbee, O'Keefe, Old River, Pearl River, Sandy Creek, Shipland, Stoneville, Sunflower, Tallahala, Twin Oaks, Upper Sardis and Wolf River.

The buck bag limit during this segment of the deer season is one per day, not to exceed three during the license year. Bucks must have four or more points. An antler point is defined as any point upon which any size ring may be hung.

The bag limit on antlerless deer is one per day, not to exceed five during the license year. However, two additional antlerless deer may be taken with bow and arrow.

The bag limit on antlerless deer shall not apply to private lands under the deer management assistance program or the fee-based antlerless program approved by the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks. Hours for hunting are one-half hour before sunrise until one-half hour after sunset.

Hunters must have a valid hunting license signed and on their person before going afield.

Hawks sweep Rocks

The Hancock High School Junior Varsity and the Hancock Junior High swept St. Stanislaus in football action Monday night. The Junior High Hawks evened their record with a 20-12 decision.

Chris Goff scored on a run of 40 yards and two pass plays of 25 and 38 yards. Pashun Robinson added the two point conversion.

The Hancock Junior Varsity ran their record to 4-0 with a 16-0 blanking of the Rock-A-Chaws. It was the fourth shut-out in as many games for the Hawks. Scoring for the Hawks included Eugene Bice on a three yard run and an 18 yard fumble recovery and run by Mark Williams. Two point conversions included a Josh Whitfield to Dyron Cuevas pass and a three yard run by Whitfield.

The Hawks have an off date next week and resume action Oct. 9 at Bay St. Louis.

sion records of 1-0. The Hawks are coming off of back-to-back impressive wins against Poplarville and St. Stanislaus. The Blue Devils are currently undefeated with a 5-0 record. Coach Rocky Gaudin says he anticipates a very physical contest with lots of defense and explosive offense.

Current statistical leaders for the Hawks include Chad Peterson - two touchdown passes and four rushing touchdowns, Darryl Williams - two receiving touchdowns, two rushing touchdowns, and 319 yards rushing, Jimmy Jones - four rushing touchdowns and 199 yards rushing, and John Woods leads the Hawks with 22 1/2 tackles.

Mississippi State 'Discovery'

Mississippi State's Sept. 30 "Discovery: MSU" extravaganza will feature food, music, a party atmosphere, a collegiate football game, and lots of information on the university.

The fall semester's informal orientation program for prospective students will precede the 6 p.m. Scott Field football game between Mississippi State and Northeast Louisiana University. "Discovery" will take place from 1-4 p.m.

As always, the event's focus is the Academic Fair on the Drill Field at the center of campus. The fair will include more than 50 college, school and departmental information displays and exhibitions.

"We consider 'Discovery' a must for prospective students and their parents and encourage as many as possible to attend," said Jimmy Abraham, associate dean of student services.

Abraham said a limited number of $7 football tickets will be sold to registrants as long as the supply lasts.

In addition to the academic displays, information will be provided about admissions, on-campus housing, financial aid, cooperative education programs, and student organizations.

Free ice cream, popcorn and other refreshments will be provided, along with musical entertainment by Mississippi State students, the cheerleading squad and the Alumni Jazz Band.

For complete information, contact the Office of College and School Relations at (601) 325-3076.
